cants," "Tractor Maintenance—Principles and Procedures," and a forthcoming "Farm Tractor Tune-up and Service Guide."

It was conducted under the general supervision of G. E. Henderson, coordinator, and Howard Turner, engineering editor, of the Southern Association for Agricultural Engineering and Vocational Agriculture. J. A. Weber, professor of agricultural engineering, University of Illinois, and C. W. Smith, professor (emeritus) agricultural engineering, University of Nebraska, served as consultants.

HEADLINE PERSONALITIES

Dr. John W. Struck has been named director of Pennsylvania's Bureau of Technical and Continuing Education, Department of Public Instruction, and also will serve as state director of vocational education. First of his new responsibilities will be coordinating activities of the Manpower and Development Act which will operate 30 retraining programs. Dr. Struck formerly was professor of industrial arts and vocational education, Florida State University.

The Chicago Board of Education recently elected Neal Duncan, former superintendent of District 5, as assistant superintendent of schools, succeeding Hobart H. Sommers, who retired in June. In this capacity Mr. Duncan heads the Department of Vocational and Practical Arts Education. He is a former Chicago member of the Board of Directors of the Illinois High School Association, as well as of the Illinois State Committee of the North Central Association.

More than 300 persons gathered earlier this year in Newport, N. C., to express their affection for Charles S. Long who retired March 1, 1962, after teaching vocational agriculture in Newport High School for 32 years. The "Charles S. Long Appreciation Day" was organized by the Newport Adult Farmer Association, which Mr. Long established many years ago.

FRANK M. BREWSTER

Frank M. Brewster, a long-time leader in vocational education in Virginia, died Oct. 14 in Portsmouth, Va. In his position as director of vocational education for the Norfolk (Va.) County public schools, Mr. Brewster, 50, supervised a broad program of vocational education for the young people of that community. He was a past president of the Virginia Vocational Association.

ROY E. HAINES

Ray E. Haines, professor emeritus of education at New York University, died Oct. 12 in West Searboro, Maine. Professor Haines, 71, was a member of the university's vocational education department for 28 years until his retirement in 1956. A member of AVA, he was editor and co-author of several books in the field of industrial arts and crafts.
